Roster Cross-Index • 1966-1970

PREFACE iii

Why not buy a company from someone who bought it during the Big Merger Bash and who, for some reason, wants to sell it now? An explanation of how the Roster Cross-Index can be of value as a shopping list for future acquisitions.

INTRODUCTION v

An explanation of what the Cross-Index is, how it was compiled, what its limitations are.

ROSTER CROSS-INDEX 1

A list of companies involved in corporate merger activity during the years 1966 through 1970—including both companies that made acquisitions and those that were acquired—with handy references to the volume and issue of M&A in which a description of the deal originally appeared.

ADDENDUM A 70

The final deals of 1970, as reported in M&A, Vol. 6, No. 2.

ADDENDUM B 70

Acquisitions not included in the Roster, but supplied to M&A by the acquiring companies for inclusion in the Cross-Index.

ADDENDUM C 71

Some additional acquisitions culled from the FTC's annual report on mergers.

PREFACE

The MERGERS & ACQUISITIONS Roster Cross-Index covers the years 1967 through 1970, "the most merger-active period in history." We are forced to that hackneyed expression because that is exactly what it was.

With all apologies for our publishing ego, we wonder which came first: the chicken or the egg? Did we, in our publishing of M&A, anticipate a trend; or did we, in fact, have a lot to do with creating it?

As early as spring of 1967, we predicted that corporate sell-offs would become a major force in the merger universe in the coming decade. We cited several forces which we believed would spur a trend toward divestitures: (1) antitrust action and the threat of it, (2) growing corporate sensitivity to divisional profit reporting, (3) the probability of SEC-required divisional earnings reports, (4) the importance of "image"—causing continual reexamination of all the products and processes with which a corporate colossus is publicly identified and (5) the feasibility of selling off a division at a profit to obtain quick capital or to improve earnings. ("The Merger Boom—How Long Can It Last?" Vol. 2, No. 3, pp. 8-9)

The merger and acquisition record for 1970 shows just how right we were. While mergers of independent companies dropped off drastically, transactions involving sale of a subsidiary, division or part of a division by U.S. companies increased dramatically—up 75 percent by some estimates. As Barron's put it, "the urge to merge of late has changed into an increasingly rampant itch to unhitch."

We know of several hundred cases where companies for sale found buyers through the pages of M&A—primarily through perusal of the Roster. We know of others who are successfully using the back issues of the magazine as a shopping list for possible sell-offs. The Roster Cross-Index should provide valuable assistance in this regard. Here is how it works:

Suppose that you decide to expand by the merger process. You can buy customers, suppliers or competitors. Or you can effect a market extension—taking your present product or service into new territories. Or you can add a new product or service line.

But once a target industry or territory has been chosen, how do you find a specific company to buy? Well, you can start hunting around in Thomas Register and the Yellow Pages, talking to the trade associations, using the D&B file by SIC number and so on. But one of the most likely places to find a good candidate for acquisition is the Roster Cross-Index. Why not buy a company from someone who bought it during the Big Merger Bash and who, for some reason, wants to sell it now? With the Roster Cross-Index you can review some 7,500 deals, isolate the ones that might be of interest, look up the Roster item itself in a back issue, check the Subject Index (in Vol. 5, No. 6) to see if mention has been made of the company elsewhere in the journal and then make an approach—see if it's available for resale. It could well be, since our current guess (summer of 1971) is that one in three or four acquisitions is up for resale! But for what reason?

Let's face right up to the problem of the "losers"—acquired product lines, divisions or subsidiaries that are currently losing money. Remember that most public companies have become income optimizers: they report out the maximum earnings allowed by their accountants. They cheerfully pay the additional taxes in order to derive what they consider to be the greater benefits of higher investor confidence and a resulting higher P/E ratio. A company dedicated to this philosophy will take depreciation on a straight line rather than on an accelerated basis in order to report more profit. Such a company will utilize the inventory method, either LIFO or FIFO, that optimizes the reporting of profit—in contrast to the closely held company that is more interested in realizing cash flow.

Most often, the acquired company will be converted to this same kind of reporting. When an earnings-optimizing company has a loss operation that is cutting into its reported earnings, even by only a few pennies per share, the board will want to dispose of it—and fast. The fact that the company will most often report a one-time capital loss on its disposition is of little consequence since it is the operating earnings and losses that the investors watch. Furthermore, many companies have hidden capital gains that they can cash at will to offset such a capital loss.

So the big push in most public corporations is to dump the losers. For the potential buyer, this means that bargain terms can often be negotiated, with long-term payouts. Assets can also be acquired at a substantial discount for cash. If the seller does not want the capital loss on its books, or must report the loss as an operating loss, a popular practice is to sell the operation in exchange for an issue of high par value preferred with highly restricted payoff terms. In this way, the seller can replace book value with the value of the preferred and not have to report the loss.

By no means, however, are only unprofitable divisions up for sale. Many conglomerates are busily selling off (and spinning off) some of their best parts—and for a variety of reasons. Antitrust prosecution—actual and potential—is one of the reasons. A company may want to buy something that is bigger or better, but which will conflict, antitrust-wise, with one of its present holdings. The solution: sell it off.

Another frequent reason for selling off a winner is to meet cash requirements. A company may not be in a position to go to the public or to a prime lender for the cash it needs to operate. So it sells off one of its better divisions to report a capital gain and to give it the needed cash.

In other cases, a company may have decided to operate as a holding company without any operating responsibilities (especially if it has experienced management difficulties). Once the decision is made merely to hold a portfolio of stocks and bonds, the company will trade off its operating divisions one by one.

Recognizing that many subsidiaries of major corporations are composed of numerous operating subsidiaries, some of these lesser parts may be on the market even though the primary subsidiary itself is not for sale. Often, these subsidiaries of subsidiaries are operating corporations; thus buying up the stock from the parent company may be all there is to taking it over.

There are still other reasons why parts of good companies may be for sale. If, for example, the capital required to properly exploit the full potential of a division puts a company's debt-to-worth ratio badly out of balance, it should be sold. No company would allow a large and expensive piece of equipment to lie idle, producing no revenue. It would be sold and the cash used to buy something more in scale. The same principle can be applied to a company's operating divisions.

Another reason for selling profitable units is bad fit or lack of synergy between the parent company and the acquired division. Often, the two simply do nothing for each other. Either the synergies did not develop as planned or, more likely, they were never there in the first place. A good company will want to sell off its misfits in order to get on with its plan of building a good, solid conglomerate rather than a loose agglomerate. (See "Corporate Diversification: A Logical Approach" M&A, Vol. 5, No. 4.)

The word conglomerate implies a planned combination of elements that work together for a common good. Concrete—the material of which Rome's 2,000-year-old Coliseum is made—is a true conglomerate. The ancient Coliseum's marble facing is gone, but the basic structure still stands. Why? Because it is made of a carefully planned conglomeration of sand, gravel and cement with the gravel carefully selected for size, the sand for sharpness and the cement for hydrating capacity. All are combined in exactly the correct proportions. Properly used, then, the word conglomerate describes a good company. General Electric is a conglomerate. So is DuPont.

In the corporate sphere, the word conglomerate was adopted from antitrust parlance where it describes an acquisition that is not related vertically (a supplier or a customer) or horizontally (a head-to-head, eyeball-to-eyeball competitor). Instead, the only relationship is that the acquired product or service can be sold in the same geographical markets as the company's current lines or that its old products can be sold in expanded territories. A pure conglomerate acquisition (again, in standard antitrust parlance) provides the acquiring company with both a new product and a new territory. There is an underlying assumption, however, that even a pure conglomerate extension is a related extension—that some relationship to either the company's present product lines or market areas must exist.

An agglomerate, on the other hand, is a random assortment of elements brought together by chance. Sand, earth, gravel, organic matter, the sweepings of wind and water, can be made to stick together until some pressure, such as that of the fingers, breaks it apart. Such is an agglomerate—the structure of most of the so-called conglomerates. The companies that gobbled up all kinds of unrelated businesses merely because they could (often it was simply an easy way for the owners to take them public) are agglomerates and should never have appropriated the term conglomerate to describe themselves. These companies were brought together for no operating reason and contributed nothing to each other—except temporarily inflated P/Es and loss of problems.

The current wave of divestitures has been variously referred to as de-conglomerating and even de-synergizing (describing companies that are selling off their losers and spinning off their winners). Neither term is very apt, however, since most of the companies that are being dismantled piece by piece are not (and never were) true conglomerates; and few of their acquisitions were ever synergistic.

But conglomerate or agglomerate, synergistic or otherwise, the merger-active companies of the past few years are now doing more selling than buying. And the companies they bought in 1967 and 1968 and 1969 are the very same companies they are unloading in 1971. In addition, then, to being the most comprehensive list of acquisitions ever compiled, the M&A Roster Cross-Index can be an invaluable catalogue for the next round of merger and acquisition activity: that of resales. ■

INTRODUCTION

The Roster Cross-Index is, quite simply, a list of companies that have been involved in merger activity from 1966 to 1970. As such, it includes both companies that made acquisitions and those that were acquired during that period. Although it is the most comprehensive tally of acquisition activity ever compiled, it does not—and could not—purport to be complete.

There is no statute in the United States requiring across-the-board disclosure of corporate acquisitions. Particularly in the case of cash transactions, a company may not be required to disclose the acquisition to the SEC, to the stock exchanges, to the public or even to its own stockholders. Some companies, of course, voluntarily disclose such information; others refuse as a matter of policy to disclose any more information than is required by law or by the stock exchanges (for member companies). Thus, many transactions go entirely unpublicized and unrecorded.

About the Roster

The Roster, from which the Cross-Index was compiled, has appeared as a regular feature of MERGERS & ACQUISITIONS since 1967. It reports the facts and terms of major mergers and acquisitions by U.S. companies for which, by someone's estimate—either the company's or ours—a total consideration of $700,000 or more (including either cash or securities) was paid. In addition, transactions are included in which a company has acquired a stock interest totaling at least ten percent in another corporation (again using a cut-off of $700,000). Not covered are blocks of stock acquired or sold by investment funds for normal investment purposes.

Sell-offs, spin-offs, product line and divisional purchases are not included in the Roster (although this rule was adopted only after some experimentation in 1967). Thus, if a company were bought and later resold, the second transaction would not normally be included in the Roster. These transactions are reported separately in Corporate Sell-Offs, another regular feature of the journal. No attempt whatever has been made to identify in the Roster Cross-Index those companies that were acquired and have since been sold off or liquidated.

Also omitted from the Roster are most intra-corporate mergers, most of which involve corporate streamlining or a shifting of corporate assets.

About the Roster Cross-Index

The Roster entries are listed in the Roster Cross-Index in the following format:

ABC (acq.) DEF 1,11
Alpha (acq. int. in) Omega 3,6
(merged) Omega 4,4
DEF (acq. by) ABC 1,11
Omega (int. in acq. by) Alpha 3,6
(merged into) Alpha 4,4

Each transaction is listed twice, once under the name of the acquired company and again under the name of the acquiring firm. The two numbers following each entry indicate the volume and issue number of M&A in which the details of the acquisition were reported.

In the above example, 1,11 indicates that the acquisition of DEF by ABC was reported in the Roster of Vol. 1, No. 11 of M&A. Some effort has been made in the Roster to distinguish statutory mergers from other forms of corporate amalgamation. This distinction has been carried through to the Roster Index; thus a company may have acquired some companies and merged others. In the above example, Alpha first acquired an interest (10 percent or greater) in Omega, which was reported in Vol. 3, No. 6 of M&A. Omega was subsequently merged into Alpha, a transaction which was reported in Vol. 4, No. 4. Where a company has completed more than one acquisition, the transactions are listed in chronological order by volume and issue—but not necessarily in the order of their actual effective dates.

References to Volumes 3, 4, 5 and 6 in the Roster Cross-Index refer to those volumes of M&A and include the acquisitions consummated in 1968, 1969, and 1970. You will note, if you own an entire set of back issues, that the Roster did not appear in Volumes 1 and 2. Nevertheless, the Roster Cross-Index makes reference to Volume 1. The Volume 1 Roster, which included both 1966 and 1967 acquisitions, appeared in the MERGERS & ACQUISITIONS MONTHLY, which was published as a supplement to the quarterly hardbound M&A in 1967. (This also explains why Volume 1 entries refer to twelve separate issues.) Although some subscribers will not have access to the Volume 1 Roster, these items were included in the Cross-Index to give it greater depth and with the idea that a list of company names could be of considerable value even without reference to the Roster item itself.

In general, then, the year in which an acquisition was completed will correspond to the volume number of M&A as follows:

1966—Volume 1 (M&A MONTHLY)
1967—Volume 1 (M&A MONTHLY)
1968—Volume 3
1969—Volume 4
1970—Volume 5

One final note: for 1966, only companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange were included in the Roster. (The list for the entire year appeared in Vol. 1, No. 1 of the M&A MONTHLY.) For 1967 through 1970, all public companies—NYSE, AMEX and O-T-C—are included in the Roster.

Many companies have changed names during the five-year period covered by the Roster Cross-Index. The editors have attempted to cross-reference companies under both names, where possible, in order that a company's entire acquisition record may be pieced together. However, should you know a company has changed its name, you would do well to check under both names.

Throughout, company names have been shortened by deleting the words Company, Corporation, and Inc. —except in cases where confusion might have resulted because of two or more companies having similar names. Company names are also abbreviated in many cases.

About the Addenda

MERGERS & ACQUISITIONS has always attempted to be as complete and as accurate as possible in its compilation of the Roster. However, through oversights and through lack of public availability of the facts, we readily acknowledge the limitations of the Roster and, hence, of the Roster Cross-Index. As previously indicated, the Cross-Index is essentially an index of merger activity that has been reported in past issues of M&A, not of merger activity per se. Three Addenda supplement the Cross-Index, two of which attempt to compensate for a lack of completeness in past Rosters.

Addendum A merely completes the list of acquisitions for 1970 as reported in the M&A Roster, Vol. 6, No. 2, which was compiled after the main body of the Roster Cross-Index had already been set in type.

Addendum B was compiled from direct correspondence with the acquiring companies listed in the Cross-Index. Companies with three or more acquisitions were invited to add to our list any acquisitions which fit the Roster criteria, but which had not been reported by M&A. The company responses to this inquiry are compiled as Addendum B.

Addendum C was culled from the FTC's annual report on mergers, which includes a list of companies acquired which had assets of $10 million or more. Transactions which were included in the FTC list, but did not appear in the M&A Roster, make up Addendum C. ■
